HELPING SCHOOLS TO BECOME MORE DIGITAL

More and more schools are adopting digital ways of working to successfully navigate the impact of digital transformation on the future of learning and education, creating digital learning environments fit for the 21st Century.

Digital literacy is now seen as the fourth essential skill alongside reading, writing and arithmetic; digital skills are ever more in demand as schools opt to go paperless, manage data and utilise new digital ecosystems to invest in upskilling staff and pupils for an inevitably digital future.

A Digital Apprenticeship is a simple and effective first step towards better developing your school's digital capabilities and skills, acting as a key and central resource for a range of activities that will make life easier whilst reducing costs.

WHAT ARE THE APPRENTICESHIP TRAINING FEE COSTS?

Each employee accessing the programme benefits from £11,000 of skills training value and professional development. There is no cost to your school for any aspect of the training. The training delivers a full level 3 diploma qualification accredited by the Chartered Institute for IT or AIM Awards subject to choice of training pathway.

'Our digital apprentice, Demi, is an incredible asset to the school, forward-thinking, creative and uses her own initiative. She has created 'Thought of the day' which is very popular and 'Elf Yourself' which embraced the school community. Demi also produces the monthly student newsletter' St Wilfrid's comprehensive school in Sussex.
